

Seminar: How Mediation Works

Course Description:

Mediation has the power to transform the way people solve their disputes and is a better and most effective way to resolve conflict. Mediation is now widely used around the world for resolving different types of disputes and is considered less time consuming and more cost effective than court proceedings.

In conducting mediation, the mediator is faced with a number of challenges, many times rooted in the personal circumstances or dispute between the parties and at other times in their social or cultural differences. The Mediator is assigned with the task of helping the parties work together to find a creative and mutually agreed solution to their dispute. In this respect mediation offers the parties many benefits and could potentially not just resolve the dispute but transform the business or even personal relationship of the parties, so that any agreement reached will be long lasting and successful in every way.

Seminar aims:

- Advance your understanding of core mediation skills
- Enhance your communication skills and abilities in the role of the mediator
- Gain insights into the different techniques practiced in mediation
- Understand how to apply skills, tools and strategies in practice
- Improve your ability to take account of cultural considerations and facilitate negotiations between disputing parties from different cultural backgrounds
- Provide you with hands on experience as a mediator in a simulation
- Help you understand how one can address legal and ethical issues in mediations
- Become aware of one's own perceptions and cognitive biases when mediating conflict.

The seminar is addressed to:

- Lawyers, Architects – Civil Engineers, Business Executives, in-house Mediators or Freelance Facilitators, as well as all professionals who aim to develop their mediation skills and improve their ability to resolve disputes with an international character

Following this training the participants should be in a position to:

- Define mediation as a concept and as a process
- Understand what happens in a mediation – step by step
- Acknowledge the benefits of using mediation for the parties in resolving their disputes
- Acknowledge the challenges a Mediator may face during a mediation
- Identify the strategies and techniques a Mediator can use to tackle such challenges and successfully mediate the dispute
